TEMPUS FUGIT.

Beyond actually declaring that a state of war exists between the United States and the German Empire, government, congress has practically accomplished nothing in the world of war. For weeks it has been struggling over details of the selective draft measure, has quibbled over raising revenue to meet the monstrous war loans, debated on what should be taxed or what should not, and wasted hundreds of thousands of dollars of good taxpayers' money by their senseless tinkering. But more belated a church sewing society than a congress of the United States.

England and France have urged that the United States send an armed force across the water to aid in the fight and it is now suggested that ten thousand regulars be sent. The state militia is waiting the call to arms, the adjutant generals of the various states are beseeching the war department for arms and equipment for the recruits, so they may be properly drilled, in vain. Governors have wired the authorities to buy at the state expense needed articles and have met with cold disdain, and yet we are at war.

Time flies. It was told that the war will end in ninety days. In one year, and then again certain next year. If the entrance of the United States into the struggle means anything, it will have borne the brunt of the fighting and are almost exhausted. It means not only men, but food. Peasants miss claim we have not sufficient food supply in this country to feed our own people, let alone spare any for Europe. If this is true, then it is time to take action to conserve our food supply by radical measures.

It can not be accomplished by prescribing this or that class legislation, but by closing down all boards of trade that deal in grain and set the market value. Let the grain supply sell for its worth, not the fictitious value that speculators set upon it. If congress dares to certain the industrial and business world of this country by adverse legislation that is confiscatory in nature, they certainly dare to stop the "gamblers" reaping profits on the toll of the tillers of the soil for personal benefits.

Close the stock exchanges and watch prices of foods drop to normal and then you will find that there will be plenty of produce in this country to meet immediate demands and leave a surplus to be shipped abroad. If congress wants to do something let them take a day off, make it their special business to investigate and close these stock exchanges and place a restriction upon patent holders, bringing the smoke back to the road, old-fashioned, honest ground whole wheat meal that puts the bones and sinews into the bodies of the citizens who must work to pay this war debt we are incurring.

JUST BICKERINGS.

When the voters of any assembly or senatorial district vote for their representative to go to the state legislature they do so with the thought that the candidate elected will represent the thought of the majority of the district. They do not intend to choose a man who consider their own personal views are far above the average citizen's conception of what should be. However such mistakes often occur, and then comes the cropper for the aspiring and self-important politician who builds himself up on the shoulders of the fellow men and targets who follow him in the past when he reaches an exalted state of mind. Almost every day on the floor of the senate and assembly are seen striking examples of these "demigods" of the present day political life. Men who believe they are sole judges of the best for the community and the state. They ignore suggestions and vote as they see fit. Perhaps they vote as they see fit with some other member so as to gain prestige, but the final accounting comes to all. They last about so long and then they sink into oblivion and are reckoned among the list of the "has beens" who went up with a crack. Their aspirations may have been for higher office, but it is suddenly snuffed out by opposition right at home and the flower blighted at the original hot-house seldom takes a prize at the show where favorite ones are paraded for consideration. Don't keep the ear close to the ground and listen to the rumblings of the discontented before placing your own opinion upon too exalted a plane.

LOST THE FIGHT.

The forces commanded by "General Inefficiency," "Colonel Uter," "Major Disability," "Lieutenant Procrastination," with the rank and file composed of the "Postponement" family, met with a sudden defeat in the United States senate Saturday when the proposed measure for the purpose of muzzling the press of the United States to cover up the deficiencies of the government in this crisis was defeated. Even though the administration preaches press censorship, urges economy on the part of its citizens, it is daily sending out, under government frank, hundreds of thousands of tons of worthless literature which they desire the newspapers to publish free of charge. The army, the navy, the marine corps, every department wants publicity, but they want on the line the kind they desire published and they want it free. They do not want real, genuine truths told, they want half truths and insinuating truths. To cover up all the deficiencies it was planned to place the press of this country in the hands of the government by the press censorship. It failed. The first fight was lost. If the press was muzzled the administration would find it hard sledding to raise the funds to pay the flood of publication of the dogma that they flood the average editions. Yet the government would increase the postal emblems of newspapers, make it cost more to distribute the publications to the subscribers. After asking for everything free they wish the publishers to go further and pay for the privilege of giving it to the public. At the present time this word is not to be used in the panic-stricken administration headquarters who are caught in a state of utter unpreparedness and have no knowledge of what to do and how to do, to extricate themselves from their dilemma.

MUST BE SIGNED.
 Governor Philip must make no mistake by failing to sign the liquor referendum measure. It is due the people of the state that they have the right to decide this question for themselves. It is a fair issue squarely presented and needs no apology. What its fate will be seen, but it is safe to say that the majority of the voters of the state desire an opportunity to express their opinion on this question and trust the governor will not fail to sign it so it may become a law.

The action of the Carroll Council of the Knights of Columbus in sending the dues of any member and keeping them in good standing, who enters in any branch of the service for the war is most commendable. Other lodges could do likewise and demonstrate a spirit of patriotism on the part of the members of the active local organizations who are too old or otherwise disabled from taking part in the struggle to have their share. As long as many have and others will follow suit, but the Knights of Columbus are the first to officially announce their stand on the question.

The legislature has a busy week planned for them. If they do not soon get down to business they will be another all summer session for them. As long as it was gloomy and cold in the capital they were willing to remain in the members were steam-heated, but now it is becoming balmy and spring-like they will find it irksome.

Planting gardens on paper is one thing, and caring for them is another. If everything planted in the spring grows, there will be a surplus of garden stuff, but no kitchen gardener need be fearful his profits will be cut down by the work of the average amateur.

The railroads are asking for an increase in the freight rates. Perhaps in the face of the increased pay law they deserve it, but remember it is always the poor consumer who pays for it and the man on the salary who is really hit hardest.

If any woman questions what part she can play in this great struggle, let it not be forgotten that the Red Cross offers ample opportunity for all sorts of activity.

PLAUDITS.

How long is the day when we,
 Like good and noble brothers,
 Look as we pass, into the glass
 Instead of knocking others.

Through the thin hotel wall the sound of the tiny piano reached the ears of Lucifer Arkins with annoying persistence. He went on doggedly with the seventh chapter of his book, "Rock Formations and Their Effect on the Birds" until the man in the next room started Beethoven's "Eggs Rag" for the third time.

Then Lucifer Arkins threw down his pen. "I am a patient man, but that continuous strumming makes me really cross," he muttered. And rising impetuously, he went to the wall and knocked bargan with his knuckles. Almost immediately the man in the next room began Schubert's "Melody in A." If there was one air that Lucifer Arkins detested more than another, it was Schubert's "Melody in A." He was using both hands and one elbow, he pounded on the wall for a full minute.

High above the noise of his pounding rose the plaintive strains of Liszt's "The Hungarian Wrappers' Spree," followed by Schumann's "Hot Tangle." Joe Sleep followed by Bizet's "Sigue Me Sweet." Lucifer Arkins bit his teeth and clenched his fists.

"Dear Unknown: I wish you to know that I appreciate your appreciation. Your applause spurred me on to play two hours after I had decided to quit last night. Gratefully, The man next door."

WORLD DEMOCRACY

TOUCH FELT BY JAPS

Tokyo, May 14.—Japanese people have seen within the past few days a considerable advance in the constitutional history of Japan—the establishment of regulations for the Japanese people may appeal direct to the throne.

The subjects of the land of cherry blossoms for the first time in history held themselves with power to inform the emperor direct of their opinions concerning the rule of the country.

Means by which the Japanese may communicate direct with their sovereign were provided at a recent meeting of the privy council, an advisory body to the throne. His majesty himself attended this meeting.

Those seeking for an explanation of this unexpected action have pointed significantly to the Russian revolution, professing to see here a touch of the world tendency toward democracy.

The new regulations, which have been approved and published in the Official Gazette, provide for the establishment of an office under the direction of the lord keeper of the privy seal, who will receive any suggestions or grievances which the people may wish to express. These will be forwarded to his majesty, who, if they deal with state affairs, will refer them to the government. If the appeal is one involving court matters it will be handled by the minister of household affairs.

The Japanese constitution grants the subjects of the empire the right of appealing to the throne, with due respect and through the proper channels, but heretofore these channels have been lacking and there has been no ruling to guide such an action.

As a result the ancient custom of "jikkiso" sprang into being years ago. Dropping letters into the emperor's carriage was considered an unpardonable crime and the offender often met with severe punishment. In the old days the guilty party was beheaded. Recently a dozen officials, feeling their laxity to the emperor, tendered their resignations. They were not accepted, however.

Counting the exhibition game the Yankees will play in Toronto on "Lajoie Day," the Donovan crew, if weather does not interfere, will put on an even thirty contests before it lands back at the Polo grounds. They visit every city in the American league except Boston.

The Detroit club sends infielder Ellison to St. Paul in the American Association. With Vitt on the job the Tigers have a surplus of infielders and the list will be added to if Manager Jennings gets DeFoe, as he expects.

SWITCHMAN'S BODY FOUND UNDER CARS; ACCIDENT MYSTERY

William Peters Meets Unlikely Death in Mysterious Manner in Early Hours of Morning.

William Peters, an old switchman in the yards of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway company here, met death under the cars early this morning while at work. To members of the switch crew with whom he was working, the fatality in a mystery. There was no witness to the accident. The body was terribly mangled and death was instantaneous.

Peters was working in the crew of Foreman J. J. Doherty at the time they were switching in the "top end" or upper yards, near the city limits. The body was found by Mr. Joerg, the second engineer in charge of the crew. It was near a switch just west of Arch street, at the lower end of the upper yards.

This morning Mr. Joerg said that he and members of his crew were unable to account for the accident. Several theories are advanced, but each is fully as much speculation as the other. Whether Peters was pulled off the car, the house being quite heavy with frost this morning, whether he was knocked off a ladder by another car or whether he attempted to draw a bit and slipped underneath will never be known.

He was missed for several minutes and search was started. It was then that his remains were found.

Mr. Peters had always made his home in Janesville. He was fifty years of age and was born in the fifth ward on Chatham street, next to the residence where his aged mother, Mrs. Sarah Peters, now resides. Mr. Peters lived at 215 Lins street. He is survived by his widow, his mother, two sisters, Mrs. John Harrison of Harrison of J. J. Doherty and Miss Adeline Peters of this city, and by one brother, Henry Peters of Chicago.

Fellow railway men and his many friends today are appalled at the accident. They knew him as a hard and industrious worker always and his jovial temperament was one of his most outspoken characteristics. He had been an employee of the Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway for years, and even though at the half century mark, stood up under the grind and tear in the yards better than many of the younger men.

Mr. Peters is prostrated as the result of the untimely accident.

Funeral arrangements were uncompleted today. Rock Road Lodge, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen of which Mr. Peters was a member, are arranging to attend the services in a body. Announcement of the time of funeral will be made tomorrow afternoon.

COMPANY "M" MOVES INTO NEW QUARTERS AT ASSEMBLY HALL

Expect to be Located Permanently by Tomorrow Evening—Men Drill at Old Armory Tonight.

Captain Caldwell, Lieutenant Rau and a squad of men from Company M, spent today in moving the equipment of the company from the old armory over Kemmerer's garage into the new quarters in the assembly hall. While the company will not be settled much before Tuesday evening, it is expected that most of the men's belongings will be in place by tonight. The new men will hold their regular Monday evening drill in the old armory this evening however.

That the new quarters will be more adequate for the enlarged company became evident to the officers this morning when the lockers began to arrive, and were set up for permanent use. The new quarters will put fifty of the large steel lockers, one of which is furnished to each man, on the balcony above the hall; the remaining thirty now on hand will be placed in the room which has heretofore been used as a smoking room and which will now be the "company room" for the use of the men. Thus the barracks in which the men will work out their drill movements will be left uncrowded. The captain will fit the two small rooms, used formerly as ladies' dressing rooms, for company officers and officers' quarters.

First use of part of the company fund of nearly $400, which was raised at the military ball given in the city hall last Wednesday evening, is being made in moving the armory. No money is granted by the government for this move, and as a consequence the men would have been forced to stay in the cramped quarters of the old armory.

After getting the equipment ready for moving has occupied the attention of the men on duty as a recruiting contingent and armory guard during the week-end, so they have been unable to make the recruiting campaign authorized in the war department's order to enlist to full war strength. One man, Raymond Mason of the city, has been enlisted recently by the company housed in their new quarters. Captain Caldwell plans a canvassing of the city and surrounding country which will bring in the city a number of new recruits. The unit is ordered to Camp Douglas.

Some idea of the development of the company in the last two months is given in the statement issued recently from the office of the adjutant general at Madison, that Company M, promised to be one of the crack units of the state's guard.

Sergeant Wood Leaves.

Sergeant Ernest Wood, U. S. A., who has been detailed as special drill instructor with the local company since last fall, this morning received orders to take command of the Edgerton platoon recently organized as a branch of Company M. Sergeant Wood will serve as the drill master for the company, but is authorized to take full command while in that city. The order further states that Captain Caldwell may appoint from his non-commissioned staff a man to assist Sergeant Wood in the drilling of the Edgerton men.

Sergeant Wood left this afternoon to take charge of his new men. During his stay here, he has accomplished the efficiency of the company, and has gained the confidence not only of the entire company, but of those with whom he has been associated about the city. During the winter he was in charge of the Boy Scouts, and was presented with a gold mounted fountain pen in appreciation of his efforts.

His work as a drill sergeant shows the efficiency of the company, and it is only with regret that the officers and men in Janesville learn of his transfer.

Engagement.

The engagement of Miss Jessie A. Pruner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Pruner, to Philip H. Korst, was announced at a tea given by Miss Pruner, Saturday afternoon. Through out the evening bridge was played. The bride was given by Mr. Pruner, Miss Katherine Jeffris and Miss Verelicia Rowley of Evansville. The table in the dining room was beautifully decorated with pink roses and yellow daisies. At each corner was a wicker basket filled with flowers.

Married Saturday.

Saturday, May 12th, at St. John's Lutheran church, Miss Anna Lueder of this city and Emil A. Padevils were united in marriage. The ceremony was read by the Rev. S. J. Padevils.

The bride was given by Mr. Padevils, who carried a beautiful bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Lillie Schindler, a friend of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a lavender gown and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Arthur Padevils, brother of the groom, was best man. A reception was given at 305 South Lins street, followed by a ceremony, after which the happy couple departed for their new home in Beloit, at 1238 Bluff street.

They were accompanied by their many friends and relatives.

Another Fined Fifty for Drunken Driving.

Judge Maxfield in police court this morning, after fining Hi Holton, 23, Stoughton, fifty dollars and costs for driving an automobile while intoxicated, told the defendant that he expected his first arrest before he and three more Stoughton young men reached the destination they had set out for.

According to Holton the four had started out for a wild time with a quart and a pint bottle of whiskey and a lot of beer, and that they planned to quit before dawn.

It was the heading off of the party here before they arrived at the roadhouse that the court was commending Holton upon for not committing. His companions' moral character was better as the result of their arrest.

Similar charges as those faced by Holton were placed against Alfred St. John, Arthur Dauncey and Clayton Lund, but they pleaded not guilty. After a conference with the officers Judge Maxfield dismissed the charges against the trio. Holton went to jail and his companions went home to raise the money.

The party was arrested on Academy street after John A. Grimes, 1320 Sharon street, reported to the police that the driver of the car was not in a condition to care for his own, his companions were forced to take to the ditch as the rapidly moving automobile, dodging from side to side, swept down on him. Other risks had just as narrow escapes in the vicinity of the best sugar factory.

Late Bulletins.

Milwaukee, May 13.—Hirsh, president of the Racine bank which failed in 1914, today pleaded guilty to receiving deposits when he knew the institution was insolvent. The other counts against him are receiving stolen money. He and Charles R. Carpenter, who pleaded guilty last week to making false representations, will be sentenced either late this or early next week.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We have some new neighbors living next door to us. They moved in last week. There is a young man my age and we start to work about the same time. This morning when I was going past his house he came out and caught up to me. He said "Good morning" and spoke to him too, because I didn't know what else to do, although we had not been introduced. Did I do the right thing? I like the young man very much. He seems to come over and would be all right to let him come to see you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl of fourteen. Do you think it proper for us to travel if one of our relatives meets us at the train? (2) Do you think it proper for two boys of our age to call on us once in awhile? (3) Do you think it wrong for two girls of our age to go to the show in the evening alone and come home by ourselves? (4) If you conduct yourselves in a perfectly ladylike manner while on a trip it might be all right.

CONSTIPATED INFANTS

Bottle babies are much more frequently subject to constipation than breast fed babies, because the bottle doesn't contain enough fat. A baby's natural nutrient contains perhaps 6 per cent of fat. Any substitute which is shy of that amount, and most of them are, sure to be, is likely to constipate. To say nothing of rice, and obesity and other effects of improper feeding.

The nearest imitation of nature's baby food is modified cow's milk. The first because, while it contains none too much sugar or milk sugar, it does contain a larger proportion of protein than human milk, and this protein is less easily digested than the protein of human milk. Therefore we dilute cow's milk with water or with some other milk, for a very young baby. But we do not wish to reduce the amount of fat and sugar in the food below the standard of human milk, so we add to the diluted cow's milk some milk sugar, and especially if the infant is constipated, some fresh cream. That makes our product more like human milk.

Babies are commonly started on a diet of constipation by the unwarmed administration of castor oil in the early days, and castor oil is notorious for its binding effect—which is the reason why it is such a good remedy in acute diarrhea. The administration of the first dose of physic to a baby is a very serious matter which should be left to the judgment of the physician and not to the judgment of some friend who happens in. The use of oatmeal water instead of plain water or lime water for diluting cow's milk is helpful in mild constipation. In babies more than two months old, if necessary, very thin and well cooked oatmeal gruel may be fed occasionally. In babies more than six months old, beef, mutton, or chicken broth should be given daily, or a FLOUR PASTE. Mix one cup flour with cold water as for starch. Add hot water and one tablespoon powdered alum. Boil five minutes, then remove from fire and add one teaspoon oil. This will make nearly three pints of paste and it will keep for months.

HOMINY. Hominy is the cheapest cereal we have and is largely used in the south, is made from white flint corn, and when well cooked is a most palatable food.

It comes in different forms of grinding. The "grits" are like coarse corn meal and can be prepared in many ways; good in soups, can be cooked in mush and served for breakfast cereal, does not require cream; adding butter and sirup or sugar makes a fine dish.

Cooked in double boiler, molded and sliced and fried in bacon fat and served hot at any meal, will take the place of potatoes.

Can be made in scrapple by adding one pound of sausage to two of well-cooked hominy, grits, molded and sliced cold and fried as you would sausage.

"Pearl" hominy is the size the name implies, a fine breakfast cereal, but it takes longer to cook thoroughly. This can be warmed over like potatoes and is suitable for any meal.

Those who have forgotten the hominy of "grandma's," can buy it in tin cans and serve it hot with milk.

Beds.

The bed was originally designed as a soft spot for the tired man to lie on.

Most hotels and some private houses have utterly missed the idea. The average hotel bed is either lumpy, awkward, swayed, backed, suffers from lumps or is otherwise deformed.

Next in point of atrociousness is the sanitary couch. It may be sanitary but it doesn't even possess the advantages of that old-time instrument of sudden death, the folding bed.

Folding beds occasionally serve to shut a man's wife up when nothing else could, but the sanitary couch can't even do that.

Then there's the narrow, hall-bedroom bed. This type has to be fitted with stirrups before you can climb on it.

There is a certain man, a class, I mean, not an individual, whom I pity with all my heart because of the way he treats his wife.

"It's a very hard thing to say, sir," she looked helplessly at the girl, but she was speechless. It was his task. If she were not worth asking for, she was not worth having. She might have said, "Well, sir," he began despondently, "I love your daughter, Helen. I want to marry her."

"Ugh!" said the colonel. "I supposed as much. How long have you and Helen known each other?"

"Over a year, sir, but I loved her from the very moment I saw her. I did not know her. I didn't dream. I never imagined, and strange as it may seem, sir, she seems to love me."

"Of course I do," said Helen, realizing that it was now high time for her to come to the rescue of her lover, and so would any other woman."

"You know, of course, that while I am not rich, I am not poor, and I can support my wife in every comfort, sir," urged the man, greatly relieved by the woman's prompt avowal.

"She'll need a few luxuries besides, I'm thinking."

"Yes, of course, sir. I'll see that she gets them. This bridge is going to make us all famous, and I shall have my father's influence and—"

"When the bridge is finished," said the colonel decisively, "come to me and you shall have my daughter."

"Oh, father, the bridge won't be finished for—"

"Understand, sir," answered the engineer, too happy at her father's consent to make any difficulties over any reasonable conditions he might impose. "Yes, Helen, it's all right; your father is right. This job's got to be done before long."

"Oh, don't say before you tackle another," protested the girl, half discomfited, and yet seeing the reasonableness of both men, while the colonel laughed grimly.

"That's about the size of it," said the old man, "no matter how you put it. One thing at a time. Meade, I don't know anybody on earth I would rather have for my son-in-law than a clean, honest, able American with a record like yours. A man who can look me in the eye and grasp me by the hand, like this."

He put out his hand as he spoke. Meade's own palm met it and the two men shook hands unemotionally but firmly, after the manner of the self-restrained, practical American, who is always fearful of a scene and does not wear his heart upon his sleeve. The colonel threw away his cigar, slipped his arm around his daughter's waist, kissed her softly on the forehead.

"I hate to lose you, Helen. I hate to give you up to anyone. We have been very happy together since your mother died, leaving you a little girl to me; but it had to come, I suppose, and perhaps I shall be glad in the end. Good night, Meade. You will be coming in presently, Helen?"

He turned and walked away as they answered him. They watched him go slowly with bowed head. They watched him climb, rather heavily, up the steps to the car; that he was an old man seemed rather suddenly borne in upon them. He stood for a moment in the light, smiling, remembering, and then turned and marched within the car. He switched the light out as he passed down the corridor.

"Wasn't he splendid?" said Helen, when she had time to breathe and freedom to speak.

"One of the finest old men on earth. He and father would make a great team."

"I was interested in the bridge, because," said the woman, "but think how I shall watch it now. You must write me every day and tell me every inch that you have gained."

"Trust me, I'll measure it in millimeters."

"And now, sweet love, good night," she whispered. And she laughed as

CHAPTER IV.

The Deflection in the Member.

Three days after the departure of the Illinois party the young engineer fell ill with follicular tonsillitis, which is about the meanest small thing that can lay a strong man low. He fretted over his enforced absence from the work and in the end had to pay for that very fretting, for he got up too soon and went out too quickly, and was promptly forced to bed again as a consequence of his impatience.

Now, after a week's confinement in his cabin, he felt strong enough to venture out again and to attack his problems. They were personal problems now, much more intimate than before, for he was building not only the bridge but wearing in its web of steel his own future happiness.

Of course he had been able to get out on the rough porch of his galvanized iron shack where he had the bridge in full view, and the day before he had even walked unsteadily down to the river bank, where he had been equally surprised and delighted at the progress that had been made. Abbott was a driver after his own heart. Really things seemed to have gone on just as well without him as if he had been on the job. He had not been lonely in his illness, for all of the chief men connected with the construction had done their best to beguile the tedium of his hours by visiting him whenever they could spare the time.

Abbott had been especially kind to him, somewhat rough-and-ready way. The big construction superintendent was fond of Meade, although he undervalued him. He regarded him more as a theorist than a practical man, and the inevitable antagonism between the theorist and the practical man, when they are not combined in one personality, was latent in Abbott's heart. Nightly, he brought to Meade details of the progress of the work. That evening, just before leaving, he remarked in the most casual manner in the world, as if it were a matter of little or no importance, that C-10-R was a trifle out of line.

Now C-10-R was the biggest member of the great right-hand truss on the north side of the river. It consisted of four parallel composite webs, each formed of several plates of steel riveted together. These webs were connected across their upper and lower edges by diagonal latticing made of steel angle bars. C-10-R and its parallel companion member, C-10-L, in the left-hand truss, carried the entire weight of the cantilever span to the shoe resting on the pier. These members were sixty feet long and five feet wide. The webs were over four feet deep and in size and responsibility the great struts were the most important of the whole structure.

To say that C-10-R was out of line meant that it had buckled, or bent, or was springing, and had departed from that rigid rectangularity and parallelism which was absolutely necessary to maintain the stability and immobility of the truss and the strength of the bridge. To the theorist nothing on earth could be more terribly portentous than such a statement, if it were true. To the practical man, who, to do him justice, had never dealt with such vast structures—and he was not singular in that, because the bridge was unique on account of its size—the deflection noted meant little or nothing.

"Good God!" exclaimed Meade, a flame on the instant with anxious apprehension. The night was warm and he was dressed in his pajamas and had been lying on the bed. As if he had been shocked into action he sat up, forgetting of his weakness. "Deflection!" he fairly shouted at Abbott, who regarded him with half-amused astonishment. "A cantilever in C-10-R? Why didn't you tell me?"

By this time Meade had got his feet into his slippers and was standing erect.

"It isn't enough to make any difference," answered Abbott quickly, perhaps a little disdainfully.

"It makes all the difference on earth," cried Meade. "It means the ruin of the bridge."

He reached for his jacket, hanging at the foot of the bed, and dragged it on him.

"Don't worry about it, youngster," said Abbott rather contemptuously, although he meant to be soothing. "I'm going to jack it into line and—here," he cried as Meade halted out of the door, "you'd better not excite yourself that way. Come back to bed, man,

Dinner Stories

One of the recruiting canvassers in an English provincial town was a well-known magistrate. In most cases he succeeded in obtaining the promises he wished, but at last he was opened to him by a sturdy son of the soil.

"My man," said the magistrate in his most persuasive tones, "are you willing to fight for our king and country?"

"No, I beant, sir," was the prompt reply. "An' I be surprised at you askin' me for to do it. Two years ago I come next month you yourself fined 120 shillings for fightin' w' Bill Smith, and you said it wor wicked to fight, an' I promised you as I wouldn't repeat the offence, an' alius kept my word."

"Ben Johnson," said the magistrate, "you are being under the influence of liquor on Christmas eve."

"Yas, suh."

"Disorderly conduct."

"Yas, suh."

"Profane swearing."

"I might er' swor—yah, suh."

"Reckless officer."

"I sho' tried to lick dat Irishman, judge."

"Fetty larceny."

"Count dat in, too."

"Ben—the law must deal heavily in your case. Is there anything you feel on your holiday spree?"

The negro scratched his ear.

"Yah, suh, if y'd could lemme out for a few minutes I'd like ter beat up mr of a woman for 'cep'in' presents from a Macon barber."

WISCONSIN LEADS STATES OF UNION IN WAR ACTIVITY

Madison, May 14.—Wisconsin is the first state in the union to recruit its national guard to full peace strength, under the requirements of the national defense act, according to Adjutant General Orlando Holway, who today gave out a list of the towns which have organized companies for the three additional regiments.

General Holway said today that he expected to complete the personnel of the three regiments in a very short time and would appear officers to time and the regiments and companies within two weeks.

The towns which have just completed formation of infantry companies are: Sturgeon Bay, Arizona, Two Rivers, Port Washington, Hartford, West Bend, Kenosha, Menasha, Waupaca, Watouren, Waukegan, Stoughton, Plainville, Durand, Spooner, Medford, Phillips, Crandon, New London, Tomahawk, Watouren, Black River Falls and Baraboo. Municipal Point and Dodgeville are jointly forming an infantry company. In addition to the towns above, the following places are expected to add in addition to their present companies: Chippewa Falls, one company; Superior, one company; Chippewa Falls, one company; Superior, one company; Ashland, one company; and Wausau, one company.

While General Holway recently announced the formation of a Fourth Wisconsin infantry regiment, he decided to reorganize its personnel and will form the fourth, fifth and sixth Wisconsin infantry regiments, according to the location of units. Chippewa Falls, Superior, Waupaca, Dodgeville and Watouren have been designated by General Holway to be Company A, in the fifth regiment. The other separate company of infantry at Janesville has been taken into the Third regiment and is now on duty as Company M. It promises to be a crack organization.

As a result of the addition of the three new regiments, forty non-commissioned officers will receive commissions as lieutenants and captains. General Holway declares that the number of men now in the Wisconsin national guard number between ten and eleven thousand. Holway plans to recruit the guard to war strength of 16,000.

Commanders of the three regiments will be given to experienced officers. General Holway plans to select the three colonels from men who served on the border during the war. The guard was a Texas. Nearly all commissioned officers of the three regiments will be selected from the First brigade. The command of the Second brigade has already been given to Charles R. Boardman of Oaklawn.

MILWAUKEE IS HOST TO HIGH-UP MASONS

Madison, Wis., May 14.—High-up Masons of Wisconsin this week in the fifty-fourth semi-annual session of the Wisconsin Consistory to be held in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of the supreme council thirty-third degree for the northern jurisdiction of the United States of America. Work in the various degrees to be conferred upon a class estimated at 100, will be given in Scottish Rite Cathedral beginning on Thursday and continuing through Thursday.

Who's Who In The Wisconsin Legislature

Senator "Tim" Burke of Green Bay is probably the most picturesque figure in the Wisconsin senate. "Tim," however, is not noted only for his looks, but has shot the fear of trouble into the hearts of many of his opponents.

When Frank Raguse, Milwaukee Socialist, made the statement on the floor of the senate that resulted in his expulsion from the senate for his alleged disloyalty remarks, it was Raguse's back that Burke, his colleague, backed Burke by expelling the Socialist senator.

Burke, with Senator Wilcox of Eau Claire, hold the "war honors" of the session. The two together have introduced more war bills and resolutions than all the rest of the legislators combined.

PROVIDES FUND TO TRAIN WAR NURSES

Madison, Wis., May 14.—The assembly will this week consider the Baxter bill providing for special courses for intensive training of attendants of the sick. The senate passed the bill last Friday under a suspension of the rules and the bill was received in the house just as an adjournment was taken. The measure appropriates $15,000 to the state council of defense for the establishment of these special courses for nurses and for the granting of scholarships and such other means as the council may direct.

The idea was originally suggested by Gov. Philipp. As soon as war threatened he gave out a statement saying that such courses should be given for the training of nurses. The bill presented in the legislature provides that these scholarships for nurses shall be granted only on the condition that the persons receiving them shall agree to engage in practical nursing in this state for a period of two years following the completion of the special course for which the scholarships are granted.

A number of bills have been reported by the joint finance committee to the senate for non-concurrence this week. The committee has unfavorably reported the bill to aid adult blind persons in the securing of employment. The measure to reimburse former State Treasurer A. H. Dahl for expenses in the litigation extending over a number of years against him for acts as state treasurer and the Carl Hansen resolution relating to the pending war. This latter resolution is written in the form of an abridgment, the first letter in every word beginning with "w." An unfavorable report has also been given on the direct marketing bill. This measure is similar to the one introduced in the 1914 session of the legislature. Because of the war it was decided by the committee to take no action on the establishment of direct marketing at this time. Necessary features of this bill are covered in the council of defense act.

CAMBRIDGE HOPES TO HAVE 'CANNON BALL'

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Cambridge, Wis., May 14.—The "Cannon-ball" express is to be resurrected from two years of railroad idleness amidst its own ruins and by next fall it is the hope of the residents of Cambridge, that connections with London, will be again restored.

The express known officially as the Chicago and Lake Superior road, is shortly to go into the hands of a receiver for sale and it is understood it will be bought by citizens who will operate it after two years of inactivity. O. H. Hanson, and O. J. Olson of Cambridge hold a judgment against the line.

Back in 1886 two promoters stirred the town of Cambridge into excitement by proposing to build a railroad from Cambridge to London. Eventually the road was run from Chicago to Superior. Its franchise so read. But for the once, three and a half miles was long enough. The town was bonded for $5,000 and work started.

Village Bonded Again. For the next ten years the only things that ran over the right of way were weeds and other noxious growths. Then two more promoters appeared, Charles Friend and Henry Hermann of Milwaukee. These two men with local and road officials elected by George Dow, Sr., president; Charles Friend, secretary; Henry Hermann, treasurer. These men with Robt. Dow of Stoughton had controlling shares. Work went ahead rapidly and finally in July, 1897, the road was ready for its maiden trip.

On July 4, 1897, a big community celebration in honor of the link that was to connect Cambridge with the outside world was held. Judge Keyes of Madison and Prof. Julius Olson of the university were the principal speakers. A pretty picture for the commerce, the industrial expansion and the influx of population was painted for Cambridge. But the village and the railroad cannonball puffed and pulled its way between the two towns but commerce did not wait by the door.

Up to 1914 the little road eked out a slight return on the investment and then under management of E. L. Delamater, it ceased operating. Creditors asked appointment of a receiver last week. All this time people having business between the two towns have been hauled in wagons and automobiles. Those who jostled with the cannonball and its promoters missed the queer-looking engine and the dumpy coaches.

Attorney Harry Butler of Madison is representing the men who have been assigned interests in the road by the creditors. W. H. Collins of Madison is also interested. It is likely that after the road is sold it may be constructed and again operated, but Cambridge is a little wary.

PHILIPP'S PORTRAIT FOR STATE CAPITOL

Madison, Wis., May 14.—A painting of Governor Philipp, which is to be hung in the executive chamber of the state capitol, has just been finished by Nicholas R. Brewer of St. Paul. The artist is now in Chicago selecting a frame for the picture. The portrait of Governor F. E. McGovern, by the same artist, was hung in the executive chamber last week. On the walls of the executive chamber are all of the pictures of Wisconsin governors. Brewer is an extremely fast worker and requires only a few days under ordinary circumstances to finish a picture. The picture of Governor Edward Scofield was painted by Mrs. L. H. Bancroft of Richmond Center. She also painted the picture of Senator Robert M. La Follette, which now hangs in the private office of the executive chamber.

Sent to Asylum. Joey Brown was picked up by the authorities Saturday and taken to Janesville, where he was examined as to his sanity. Upon examination he was found to be insane and will be committed to an asylum. He has been acting strangely for the past several weeks and Saturday morning he was found near the river. Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Springer called on Edgerton friends on Sunday. Sergeant Woods of Janesville, has been detailed to drill the Edgerton platoon and will come to Edgerton and locate here permanently. So far the St. Louis National League club which has eliminated practically all passes except the few issued to the press is getting away with it, but there are dire rumblings from the city hall gang of what they mean to do to the ball club. Look for a sewer dug through the pitcher's box and a street splitting the outfield wide open.
